

Paiankh, son of Kherihor and Chief High Priest of Ammon. The name, in the form Paankhi, is borne by two rulers of the South, in the first and fourth kings of Dynasty XXV. It is absolutely identical with the Paanchi of Helaman 1:3.

The Egyptian form of the name Sidon reads approximately Djidonah (the "d" very strong), suggesting the Book of Mormon proper name Giddonah. The Hebrew form is very common in the Book of Mormon. (From Max Burchardt, "Altkanaanaischen Fremdworte" after W. F. Albright, "Vocalization of the Egyptian Syllabic Orthography," 67.)

The full title of Kherihor before he became king in Thebes. In the Book of Mormon (Alma 30), Korihor is sent by Ammon, whose office of High Priest over the people of Ammon has important judicial and political functions, to be tried before "the high priest and chief judge of the land." Just such a combined and general authority was enjoyed by Kherihor in Egypt as Chief Servant (Hem) of Amon. The Ammon in the Book of Mormon has a brother by the name of Hem.
